

And Meets a Lot of Friends

Faye Emerson Is Star at Party

By Frances Rowan

FAYE EMERSON fitted right in with the spirit of the American Newspaper Women's Club yesterday afternoon.

The club, whose parties are always fun and informal, had the glamorous star of "The Heavenly Twins" as its guest of honor at cocktails. And the friendly and vivacious Miss Emerson made the club a more fun than ever spot to be in.

Arriving late from the National Theater ("We've been working every minute," she says) blonde Miss Emerson stood with club president, Violet Faulkner, to greet the many friends she's made on other visits and trips to Washington.

ONE OF the first to greet her was an oldtime friend, Mrs. Claude Pepper, wife of the former Senator from Florida. She introduced Miss Emerson to Mrs. Richard H. Mack, wife of the newly appointed commissioner of the Federal Communications Commission. Mrs. Pepper says she's hoping to give a cocktail party for Faye during her stay here.

"Don't you ever grow older?" said the guest of honor to another longtime friend, Mrs. Blake Clark. "No, and you, don't either!" laughed Deena Clark.

Taking time out for a huddle, Miss Emerson promised Mrs. Spencer Waters and Mrs.

Martin Vogel to appear at a luncheon of the Junior Committee of the Home Hospiality Committee on Thursday when it will make plans for its tea dance on Nov. 2.

"YOU LOOK even better off stage than on," said Mrs. Randall Hagner as she passed down the line getting a big smile of appreciation from Faye.

Following Mrs. Hagner was Mrs. Morris Cafritz who left the line to talk to Ruth Crane about her appearance this Friday on Edward R. Murrows' Person to Person television show, "Keep Your fingers crossed for me," she said. Also going down the line was Mrs. Eric Johnston, wife of the president of the Motion Picture Association; Mrs. William Culbertson, Mrs. Charles Cabell, wife of the Deputy Director of the Central Intelligence, Mrs. Robert Guggenheim, and Mrs. William Burdick.

Mrs. Burdick, president of the League of Republican Women, was telling Miss Emerson's secretary, Hazel Oxholm, that she leaves for New Orleans on Monday to attend the meeting of the National Federation of Republican Women there.

Still more greeting Faye, who wore a black cocktail suit with a white chiffon scarf, were Mrs. Harry Cain, Mrs. Leslie Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. George Breed, and Mrs. James Ward, wife of Adm. Ward.
